

Phillimore Text Version of Domesday

<1a>

KENT

KEN D1

[In EASTRY Lathe]

[In BEWSBURY Hundred]

DOVER

before 1066 paid £18, of which pence King Edward had two parts and Earl Godwin the third. Against this, the Canons of St Martin's had the other half.

KEN D2

The burgesses gave 20 ships to the King once a year for 15 days. In each ship were 21 men. They did this because he had given over to them full jurisdiction.

[Dover]

KEN D3

When the King's messengers came there, they gave 3d in winter and 2d in summer for horse passage. The burgesses found a steersman and 1 other assistant. If there was more labour, it was hired with his own money.

[Dover]

KEN D4

From the Feast of St Michael until the Feast of St Andrew the King's truce, that is peace, was in the town. If anyone broke it, the King's reeve received the common fine for it.

[Dover]

KEN D5

Whoever lived permanently in the town and paid customary dues to the King was exempt from toll throughout the whole of England.

[Dover]

KEN D6

All these customs were there when King William came to England.
[Dover]

KEN D7

After his [King William's] first arrival in England the town was burnt. Its valuation could not therefore be reckoned, what its value was when the Bishop of Bayeux acquired it. Now it is valued at £40; however, the reeve pays £54, that is £24 of pence, which are 20 to the {ora}, to the King and £30 at face value to the Earl.
[Dover]

KEN D8

In DOVER are 29 messuages whose customary dues the King has lost. Of these, Robert of Romney has 2, Ralph of Courbèpine 3, William son of Theodwald 1, William son of Oger 1, William son of Theodwald and Robert Blaec 6, William son of Geoffrey 3, including the burgesses' guild-hall, Hugh de Montfort 1 house, Durand 1, Ranulf of Colombières 1, Wadard <of Cogges> 6, and[Geoffrey] son of Modbert 1. For these houses they all cite the Bishop of Bayeux as protector and deliverer, that is donor.

KEN D9

For the messuage which Ranulf of Colombières holds, which was an exile's, that is an outlaw's, they agree that half the land is the King's; Ranulf has both [halves] himself. Humphrey Strapfoot holds 1 messuage, half of which was forfeit to the King. Roger of Westerham made a house on the King's waterway, and has hitherto kept the King's customary dues. The house was not there before 1066.
[Dover]

KEN D10

At the entrance to DOVER harbour is a mill, which wrecks almost all ships, through its great disturbance of the sea; it does very great harm to the King and his men; it was not there before 1066.

Of this, [Hugh,] Herbert's nephew says that the Bishop of Bayeux gave permission for it to be made by his uncle, Herbert son of Ivo.

<1b>

KEN D11

The men of four Lathes, that is The Borough Lathe, Eastry Lathe, 'Limen' Lathe and Wye Lathe, agree upon the following royal laws.

[Dover]

KEN D12

If anyone has made a fence or ditch whereby the King's public road is narrowed, or has felled into the road a tree that stood outside the road, and has carried off branch or foliage from it; for each of these offences he shall pay 100s to the King.

[Dover]

KEN D13

If he has gone away from home without being apprehended or attached, nevertheless the King's officer should follow him and he shall be fined 100s.

[Dover]

KEN D14

On breach of the peace, if anyone commits it and is charged on the road or attached he shall pay a fine of £8 to the King. But if he is exempt towards the King he shall not be so for the Lord whose man he is.

[Dover]

KEN D15

For other offences it is as for breach of the peace, but he shall pay a fine of 100s.

[Dover]

KEN D16

The King has [the fines for] these penalties over all freeholders of the whole of the County of Kent.
[Dover]

KEN D17

When a freeholder dies then the King has the death-duty on the land, apart from the land of Holy Trinity [of Canterbury], of St Augustine's [of Canterbury] and of St Martin's [of Dover], and with these exceptions: Godric of Bishopsbourne, Godric Karlson, Alnoth the noble [of Kent], Esbiorn Bicga, Sired of Chilham, Thorgisl, Northmann <of Mereworth> and Azur. Over these the King has only the capital penalty even now, and he has the death-duty on the lands of those who have full jurisdiction.
[Dover]

KEN D18

And over these lands, namely {Goslaches}, Buckland, the other Buckland, the third Buckland, Hurst, 1 yoke of Oare, 1 yoke of Harty, {Schildricheham}, Macknade, Arnolton, {Oslachintone}, Perry [Court], the other Perry [Wood], Throwley, Ospringe and Horton the King has these penalties: house-breaking, breach of the peace, highway robbery.
[Dover]

KEN D19

On adultery, over the whole of Kent the King has the [fine from the] man and the Archbishop [of Canterbury] [from] the woman, apart from the land of Holy Trinity [of Canterbury], of St Augustine's [of Canterbury] and of St Martin's [of Dover], from which the King has nothing.
[Dover]

KEN D20

On theft, the King has half the goods of whoever is condemned to death.
[Dover]

KEN D21

Whoever receives an exile without the King's permission, the King has the fine from him.

[Dover]

KEN D22

From the aforementioned lands of Alnoth the noble [of Kent] and others like him, the King has a bodyguard for 6 days at Canterbury or at Sandwich. They have food and drink from the King; if they have not had it they withdraw without penalty.

[Dover]

KEN D23

If they are summoned to meet at the Shire they go as far as Penenden, not further. If they do not come, the King has 100s for this offence and for all others, with the exception of breach of the peace for which the fine is £8; and from the roads, as written above.

[Dover]

KEN D24

In 'Limen' Lathe, in {Briseuuei} the King has a customary due, namely 2 carts and 2 sticks of eels, for one Escort; and in the land of {Sophis} he has 12d for one Escort; and from 1 yoke of 'Northborough' 12d for one Escort; and from Dean [Court] 18d, and from {Gara} one Escort. These lands lie in Wye. Men from these lands guard the King at Canterbury or at Sandwich for 3 days if the King comes there.

[Dover]

<1c>

KEN D25

In the Lathe of Sutton and in the Lathe of Aylesford, these had full jurisdiction: Brictsi the noble, Aethelwold of Eltham, Eskil of Beckenham, Azur of Lessness, Alwin Horne, Wulfward White, Ording of Horton, Esbiorn of Chelsfield, Leofnoth of Sutton, Edward of Stone, Wulfstan [of Wateringbury] and Leofric of Wateringbury, Oswald of Norton, Edith of Asholt and Alred of Yalding.

[Dover]

M Land of the Canons of St Martin's of Dover

KEN M1

In the Lathe of Eastry the Canons of St Martin's had 21 sulungs _ before 1066 in `Cornilo' Hundred and Bewsbury Hundred. In the Lathe of `Limen' they had 3 sulungs, one in Street Hundred, another in Bircholt Hundred, and a third in `Blackbourne' Hundred. Before 1066 they were prebends in common; and paid £61 in total. Now they have been distributed individually by the Bishop of Bayeux.

KEN C1

[In THE BOROUGH Lathe]

[In CANTERBURY Hundred]

In the City of CANTERBURY King Edward had 51 burgesses

who paid tribute and another 212 over whom he had full jurisdiction; and 3 mills at 40s. Now there are 19 burgesses who pay tribute. [The houses] of 32 others who were there have been destroyed, 11 in the city ditch, the Archbishop [of Canterbury] has

7 of them, the Abbot of St Augustine's another 14 in exchange for the castle. There are still 212 burgesses over whom the King has full jurisdiction; and the 3 mills pay 108s. The toll pays 68s; 8 acres of meadow which used to be the King's messengers' now pay 15s in tribute; 1000 acres of unproductive woodland which produce 24s.

In total, value before 1066, £51; as much when Haimo the sheriff acquired it; now valued at £50. However the present holder pays

£30 assayed and weighed, and £24 at face value. Over and above all this the sheriff has 110s.

KEN C2

A monk of Canterbury Church took away two houses of two burgesses, one outside, the other inside, the City. These were situated on the King's road.
[Canterbury]

KEN C3

The burgesses had 45 messuages outside the City, from which they had tribute and customary dues; the King however had full jurisdiction. These burgesses also had from the King 33 acres of land for their tax. Ranulf of Colombières holds these houses and this land. He also has 80 acres of land over and above these, which the burgesses held in freehold from the King. He also holds 5 acres of land which rightly belong to a church. For all these Ranulf appeals to the Bishop of Bayeux as his protector.
[Canterbury]

KEN C4

Ralph of Courbèpine has 4 messuages in the City, which [Earl] Harold's concubine held; of which the full jurisdiction is the King's, but up to the present he has not had it.
[Canterbury]

KEN C5

Ralph [of Courbèpine] also holds another 11 messuages from the Bishop of Bayeux in the City itself; they belonged to Esbiorn Bicga, and paid 11s 2 1/2d.
[Canterbury]

KEN C6

The King has full jurisdiction throughout the whole City of Canterbury, apart from the land of Holy Trinity Church, of St Augustine's, of Queen Edith, of Alnoth the noble [of Kent], of Esbiorn Bicga and of Sired of Chilham. It was agreed about the straight roads which have entry and exit through the City, that whoever does wrong on them shall pay the fine to the King; likewise regarding the straight roads outside the City as far as 1 league, 3 perches and 3 feet. If anyone digs or fixes a post within these public roads within the City or outside it, the King's reeve follows him wherever he has gone, and receives the fine for the King's works.

KEN C7

The Archbishop [of Canterbury] claims the fine on roads outside the City on both sides where the land is his.
[Canterbury]

KEN C8

A reeve, named Brunmann, took the customs from foreign merchants before 1066 in the land of Holy Trinity and of St Augustine's; after 1066 he acknowledged before Archbishop Lanfranc and the Bishop of Bayeux that he had received them wrongfully; he swore on the sacrament that these Churches had their customs exempt before 1066. From then on both Churches had their customs in their land, by the judgement of the King's barons, who tried the case.
[Canterbury]

KEN R1

[In the Lathe of AYLESFORD]

[In ROCHESTER Hundred]

R The City of ROCHESTER was valued at 100s before 1066; when the Bishop acquired it, the same; value now £20; however the holder pays £40.

[In `SLOTISFORD' Hundred]

In the Borough of WALLINGFORD

King Edward had 8 virgates of land, and in them were 276 sites, which paid £11 in tribute. Those who lived there did service for the King with horses, or by water, as far as Blewbury, Reading, Sutton [Courtenay] and Benson. The reeve gave wages or allowances to those who did so, not from the King's tribute, but from his own.

All customary dues in this Borough are now as they were before.
But there are 13 fewer sites. 8 were destroyed for the castle;
a moneyer has 1, exempt so long as he coins money; Saewulf of Oxford has 1; [Alwy] son of Alsi of Faringdon, 1, which the King gave him, as he states; Humphrey Vissdeloup has 1, for which he calls the King to warrant; Nigel [of Aubigny] 1 from Henry [of Ferrers], through Swarting's inheritance,
but the burgesses testify that they never had it.
The King does not have the customary dues of these 13, and, further, William of Warenne has 1 site from which the King does not have customary dues. In addition there are 22 Frenchmen's messuages which pay 6s 5d. King Edward had 15 acres in which his Guards lived; Miles Crispin holds them; the [burgesses] do not know how; one of them lies in [Long] Wittenham, Walter Giffard's manor.

BRK B2

Bishop Walkelin [of Winchester] has 27 sites at 25s; they are valued in his manor of Brightwell. The Abbot of Abingdon has 2 acres, in which are 7 messuages at 4s; they belong to Oxford.
Miles [Crispin], 20 messuages at 12s 10d; they lie in [the valuation of] Newnham [Murren]; moreover, 1 acre, in which are 6 sites at 18d; in [the valuation of] Haseley, 6 messuages which pay 44d; in [the valuation of] [North] Stoke 1 messuage at 12d;
in [the valuation of] Chalgrove 1 messuage at 4d; in [the valuation of] Sutton [Courtenay] 1 acre, in which are 6 messuages at 12d; in [the valuation of] Bray 1 acre, and 11 messuages there at 3s.
All this land belongs to Oxfordshire; however it is in WALLINGFORD.

BRK B3

Reginald [Cnut] has 1 acre, in which are 11 messuages at 26d; they belong to Albury, which is in Oxford[shire].
The Archbishop [of Canterbury], 6 messuages at 26d.
Walter Giffard has 1 acre and 10 messuages at 6s and 3 halfpence.
Robert d'Oilly, 4 messuages at 20d.
Gilbert of Ghent, 1 messuage at 2 1/2d.
Hugh the large [of {Scoca}], 1 messuage at 4d.
Ralph son of Seifrid, 2 sites at 12d.
Hugh of [B]olbec, 1 site at 4d.
Ranulf Peverel, 1 at 4d.

When tax was given before 1066, commonly throughout Berkshire

the hide gave 3 1/2d before Christmas and as much at Whitsun.
If the King sent an army anywhere, one man-at-arms only went from 5 hides and for his supplies or pay 4s were given to him for 2 months from each hide; they did not send this money to the King, but gave it to the men-at-arms.
If anyone was summoned for an expedition, but did not go,
he forfeited the whole of his land to the King.
But if anyone who had [the reason to] stay behind promised to send another man in his place, but the man who was to be sent stayed behind, his lord was cleared for 50s.
At his death, a thane or a King's household man-at-arms sent to the King as death-duty all his arms and horse, one with a saddle, another without a saddle; but if he had dogs or hawks, they were presented to the King, to accept if he wished.

BRK B11

If anyone killed a man who had the King's peace, his body and all his substance were forfeit to the King.
Whoever broke into the City at night paid 100s fine to the King,
not to the sheriff.
A man who, summoned for game-beating for a hunt, did not go paid the King 50s fine.

Of this manor, the Shire confirms that Edric, who held it, delivered it to his son, who was a monk in Abingdon, to hold at a revenue and to provide him with the necessities of life for as long as he lived; but that after his death, he should have the manor. Therefore the men of the Shire do not know what belongs to the Abbey, for they have not seen the King's writ or seal. But the Abbot testifies that before 1066 he put the manor in the [lands of the] church where it was, and has King Edward's writ and seal for it, which all his monks confirm.
